

1. Do you want the ability to do more than just screen share exhibits?

Both of Huseby's platforms allow you to not only present new exhibits, but also hand opposing counsel and the deponent a courtesy copy and access previously marked exhibits with ease. If you prefer having a few more "bells and whistles" at your fingertips, using HusebyConnect, exhibits can be annotated, stamped confidential and marked with an exhibit sticker. If you want to track chain-of-custody of your electronic exhibits, RingHuseby provides email alerts when a document has been accessed and downloaded. These are just a few ways Huseby's platforms take remote exhibit presentation to the next level.

2. Are the parties involved, including the deponent, tech-savvy?

While HusebyConnect provides more "bells and whistles", RingHuseby is a great option for those looking for a simpler, more straightforward platform that is easy to navigate on any device, including iPad/tablets and smart phones. Joining the deposition is simple. An email invitation with a password-protected direct link to web conference will be sent to all parties including the deponent for easy access. A live Huseby expert technician will be available to assist during log-in and throughout the deposition for those who require technical support.

3. Is opposing counsel hesitant to agree to a remote deposition?

Huseby offers multiple platforms to provide you options to choose the platform that is right for your case, and is agreed upon across all parties. Your depositions don't come in a "one size fits all" package, and neither should your remote platform. A live Huseby expert technician will be available prior to the start and throughout your deposition for both technical support and to answer any general questions that may arise. Their role is to ensure your event runs smoothly. With multiple platform options and expert technical support, more case parties choose Huseby.

4. Do you have the ability and opportunity to attend a demo or prep session?

Attending a demo gives you the ability to view all options and match the remote deposition platform with your case needs. Once you have selected your preferred platform, you can schedule a prep session for your team to personally explore the platform and practice presenting exhibits. If you are unable to attend a demo or prep session, no worries, you have full access to step-by-step videos and guides in your Remote Deposition Resource Library by visiting www.huseby.com/remote-depositions

5. Is live support during your deposition important to you?

Live support is the cornerstone of a successful remote deposition experience. When utilizing either of Huseby's signature platforms, RingHuseby and HusebyConnect, an expert technician will be with you every step of the way to ensure you have a smooth and positive experience. All of our technicians are Huseby team members and are not outsourced to a third-party, giving you the peace of mind that your event has the right industry knowledge and expertise on the other end.
